The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s meekness and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime and Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom has been skipped school that afternoon and went rowing, but his clothes are still wet from the rain. He is hot, tired, and his half brother, Ben, who has deserted him, is smirking. Tom’s half-brother, Ben, is smirking. Tom has sworn the dirt to disguise his whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom meets the new arrival of the town, a stranger with a brand new uniform and eventually changes the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Joe passes by, and Tom asks to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of marble. Joe almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his任务.
